OHIO WAGE LAW FOUND LEGAL BY SUPREME COURT

Allen, Underwood and Nevin Rule State's Statute Constitutional

REGULATIONS TO FOLLOW

Attorney For Plaintiffs to Seek Higher Finding

COLUMBUS, Nov. 20.—(UP)—Ohio's minimum wage law for women and minors was upheld as constitutional by the three-judge federal court here today.

The decision permits the state to continue enforcement of wage regulations, but the victory for the state may be only temporary, as the United States Supreme court, in a 5-to-4 decision last June invalidated a New York law that was practically identical with the Ohio statute.

Up to Supreme Court

The Supreme Court will have the last word in the Ohio case, as an appeal is to be carried to that court by Agnes B. Dickinson, Columbus, attorney for plaintiffs who had attacked the Ohio law.

Today's ruling was unanimous, with Circuit Judge Florence E. Allen, Cincinnati, and District Judges Mel G. Underwood, Columbus, and Robert Nevin, Cincinnati, concurring.

The essence of the court's ruling, read by Judge Allen, was that the Ohio law was clearly distinguishable from other minimum wage laws which have been held unconstitutional by the United States Supreme court.

The chief point of difference, the decision held, was that the other laws set wages based on living conditions and standards, which vary; the Ohio law on the other hand, set wages "reasonably commensurate with service received," the court held.

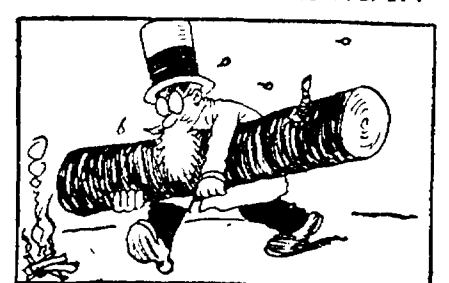

Because of this the court does not feel itself to be bound by the decisions of other courts," Judge Allen said.

Steeplejack Saved by Two Daring Firemen

GRANITE CITY, Ill., Nov. 20.—(UP)—Two hundred feet above ground, Steeplejack Robert Berier set aside his brush, reached for the rope supporting his wooden seat, and began to lower himself along the smokestack he had been painting.

The rope slipped, and Berier tumbled for it frantically. He was too late. With a sickening swish, he plummeted past the smooth sides of the stack, at a speed that took away his breath.

"Modern Miracle"

His body twisted and whirled, and his heel thrust into a loop of rope. With a jerk that snapped every tendon in his body, Berier was brought up short, dangling head first 120 feet above the ground. His brush and paint pail smashed below.

As his breath and consciousness returned, Berier looked up at his foot. To reach the rope with his hands would require a struggle that might loosen the rope and send him plunging the rest of the way. He looked down, saw a crowd gathering below.

Fire Departments Called
Someone called the Granite City fire department. Firemen thrust up their ladders—The longest one in the city. It was too short, between Berier and the top of the ladder was a gap he could not bridge.

The East St. Louis fire department was called. They had a longer ladder. While he waited, fighting to stay conscious, the wind caught Berier and smashed him against the smokestack. He dangled like an apple on a string.

There was a cheer from below when the East St. Louis department arrived. They had a long ladder. Cautiously, the end of the ladder was thrust up the side of the stack. It went up 115 feet and stopped. That was the limit. Berier was still five feet from safety, and helpless.

In the face of almost impossible chance, two East St. Louis firemen started up the stack with ropes. From the top, they heaved a coil about the stack above their heads—and above Berier. Holding to their rope, they inched themselves slowly up the side of the marooned steeplejack.

Suffered Injured Leg
Two more firemen stepped up the ladder. The men beside Berier braced themselves, tied another rope about him, and cut the one that entangled his foot. Slowly, they lowered him to the men on the ladder. When they reached the ground, Berier was gone.

At a hospital, physicians said today Berier suffered only from a wrenched leg.

OTHERS WILL FOLLOW

Resettlement Work Includes Wayne, Perry Townships

Actual construction of farmsteads in Pickaway and Ross counties in the Rural Resettlement project will begin within the next few weeks if weather does not hamper concrete work.

Philip G. Beck, regional resettlement head, said in Indianapolis Friday that plans for 13 farmstead units on Scioto Farms have been turned over to the Washington, D. C. construction division of the resettlement administration for actual building of improvements.

Improvements will include a house, barn, other needed outbuildings and adequate fencing.

More Units to Follow
Twenty-five additional units will be ready for construction by Dec. 15, Beck said.

Many acres of land in Perry and Wayne townships have been sold to the government for the resettlement project.

More than 6,400 acres of Ohio land were added to the government's holdings in Ohio during the last month in connection with the Resettlement program. Total acreage now owned by the Federal government on three land use projects is 9,959 acres. This includes 642 acres on the Southeast Ohio erosion control project near Zanesville, 3,961 acres on the Zaleski forestry project near McArthur and 5,356 acres on the Ross-Hocking forestry project at Chillicothe.

The Zaleski project broke into the pay column when purchase of 3,961 acres was completed within a few days.

Capital Fears European Warfare Danger Nearer

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—(UP)—Administration leaders believed the peace of Europe was hanging by a slender thread today as a result of recognition of the Spanish nationalist regime by Italy and Germany.

After a 24-hour study of the situation created by what diplomatic observers here considered the premature recognition move by the two Fascist powers, state department officials believed an ominous step had been taken toward Europe's long expected hostilities.

Recognition at this time, observers declared, revealed an open disregard by the German and Italian governments for usual diplomatic procedure.

March Against Russia

In some quarters the Italo-German action was viewed as a continuation of the march begun some time ago against communism in general, and against the Soviet Russian frontier in particular. The recognition move, and Premier Mussolini's subsequent demand for additional men and guns for the Italian army were regarded as designed to intimidate France with the shadows of marching men and to cause her to withdraw farther from her military alliance with Soviet Russia.

Such a distraction, officials here believe would enable Germany to consolidate the peaceful penetration which she has been attempting for some time into Czechoslovakia, with the object of bringing that border nation into the economic and political fold with Italy and Germany. With Czechoslovakia in line and a corridor to the Soviet frontier opened to Germany's marching Nazi troops, Chancellor Hitler would need only access to Roumania's oil fields to be ready to strike in the war against communism which he and his Nazi associates have so openly preached.

A further move in preparation for such a blow is seen by both diplomatic and military observers here in the persistently reported entente reached by Italy, Germany and Japan. Military leaders here long have been convinced that should Soviet Russia become engaged in a war with a power on the west, Japan would move immediately on the Siberian border where conditions similar to guerrilla warfare have existed for several years.

JUDGE DECIDES

ONTARIO'S BABY DERBY IS LEGAL

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 20.—(UP)—Justice W. E. Middleton today upheld validity of the baby race clause in the will of Charles Vance Millar, which started Toronto's 10-year $500,000 maternity marathon.

His decision upholding the right of Millar to leave the residue of his estate to Toronto's most prolific mother, or mothers, came as a surprise today. In reserving judgment after hearing arguments on the validity question last Monday, Justice Middleton had said he would give a decision Nov. 23.

Justice Middleton also ruled that the fortune could go only to the winning mother, or mothers, of legitimate children. His decision eliminated one of the seven mothers now apparently tied for leadership with nine children each. Mrs. Pauline Mae Clark.

The justice said he would reserve judgment on the method by which the winning mother, or mothers, should be determined.

other European nations to the sinister situation developing, and add as rapidly as possible to their military machine.

France May Not Fight

At least, this was the view voiced by competent American military observers. They believe France will not fight for Soviet Russia unless France is actually attacked, and observers here do not anticipate such an attack. They believe that France will be held neutral by the threat of Italy's huge war machine on her borders; that Italy is not likely to become actively embroiled on her borders; that Italy it not likely to become actively embroiled with Soviet Russia unless France gets into the fray, but will more likely remain as a guarding bulwark on the German flank while the German army does the real fighting.

EDUCATORS HEAR MADRID WOMEN, PLANS FOR HUGE CHILDREN MOVE TO SAFE REGION

MADRID, Nov. 20.—(UP)—Government leaders, horrified by the slaughter wreaked by nationalist bombing airplanes, considered today a plan for evacuation of every woman and child from the capital.

It was proposed to leave none but men in the city for a fight to the death against the nationalists in which quarter would neither be given nor asked.

It was admitted that the task was a gigantic one, in a city whose people number nearly 1,500,000.

Food Supply Low

But to the threat that thousands of women and children might be torn to pieces by bombs was added the threat of starvation.

The city's food supply is perilously low. Restaurants began hanging out signs last night "no food left." Babies cried vainly today for milk as their mothers, huddled in doorways, sheltered them from the cold and the misty rain.

So urgent was the situation regarded that it was even suggested in official quarters that the nationalists be asked to pass through their lines special trains bearing women, children and aged men.

Evacuation Under Way

But to all effect, the mass evacuation already was under way. All through the night motor buses, mobilized by the defense council, were leaving the city for the east coast with women and children.

A special commission was organized to go to the coast and seek food supplies.

The new loyalist air fleet took to the air again at dawn to watch for nationalist raiding planes.

Chilton Ordered to Seek Franco's Safety Pledge

BULLETIN

BARCELONA, Nov. 20.—(UP)—A nationalist cruiser was reported off the coast today, in token that the formal blockade of Barcelona had commenced.

It was believed that the cruiser already had sunk one loyalist freight steamship which sought to make port.

LONDON, Nov. 20.—(UP)—Great Britain has decided to challenge a Spanish nationalist threat to blockade Barcelona and will resist any attempt to search or seize its ships on the high seas.

Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden disclosed to a startled, anxious House of Commons a nationalist note to Great Britain threatening to destroy the port of Barcelona if necessary and warning foreign ships and foreign citizens to get out of it.

Immediately afterward British policy was outlined to the United Press as follows:

1.—Britain will refuse to recognize the nationalists' right to enforce a blockade.

2.—Britain will resist any attempt to search or seize its ships on the high seas so long as the nationalists have not been accorded the status of belligerents. Neither they nor the Madrid government have been accorded such status.

The admiralty meantime has flashed to all British merchant ships in the Mediterranean news of the nationalist blockade threat. The view was taken for the present, it was understood, that

COLUMBUS, Nov. 20.—(UP)—Their stand on farm policies clearly defined, grangers from 35 states moved homeward today to carry forward a vigorous program of "economic justice" for American agriculture.

Standing with hands clasped in and endless chain symbolizing the united spirit of America's oldest and most powerful farm fraternity, the few remaining delegates of the 15,000-peak crowd last night brought to a close the National Grange's 70th. annual convention. The farm program, whipped into final shape after nine days of lengthy sessions and night-long committee hearings, was termed by National Commander Louis J. Taber of Columbus "one of the most far-sighted and constructive programs ever adopted by a grange convention."

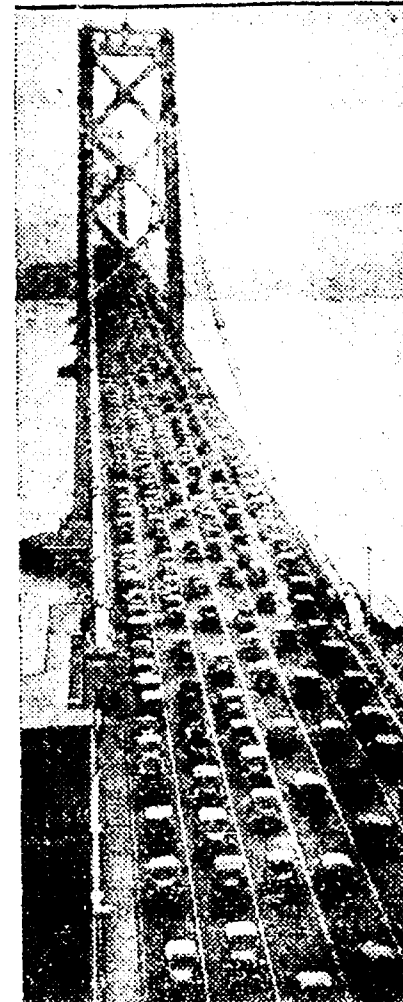

In Middle of Road Admittedly a "middle-of-the-road" platform, the grangers nevertheless saw in it a trend away from the traditional grange conservatism toward a broader view of rapidly changing farm conditions.

As evidence of a more "liberal" outlook, grangers pointed to resolutions favoring the principle of crop insurance and urging the plan be tried on a "limited scale"; commending "heartily" a "sound" soil conservation program and promising grange assistance to any such plan; favoring the maintenance of inheritance, estate and gift taxes and urging taxation of all income sources, including federal and state salaries and interest on bonds now tax exempt.

In addition, grangers cited resolutions urging support of national and state granges of all cooperative movements for marketing and purchasing goods; asking admission to relief roles of all needy persons; urging the continuance of the rural rehabilitation program on a more permanent basis; to aid southern tenant farmers in receiving loans, and demanding stronger neutrality legislation, including embargoes on basic war materials.

In this connection, the convention called for the settlement of international disputes by "reason and agreement" as contained in the Kellogg pact, urged nationalization of the munitions industry and opposed protection of capital investments in war time. Although reaffirming its stand of "the American market for the American farmer," observers regarded as significant the organization's intentional failure to oppose importation of goods from the Philippine Islands. Nevertheless, the grangers criticized "most favored nation" clauses in recent trade pacts and demanded that in the event reciprocal trade agreements

Traffic on Bridge

TRAFFIC on the new San Francisco - Oakland Bay bridge, recently opened after being completed at a cost of $77,600,000, is heavy, as this excellent photo of the bridge attests. On one day, officials estimated receipts totaled $150,000, each car being assessed 65 cents to cross. This photo was taken from Yerba Buena Island, mid-way in the 8 1/2-mile-long bridge.

Forty-five minutes later Joan Bennett will appear for a quizzing by Elza Schallert. Miss Bennett was scheduled last Friday, but refused to go on the air because of the "thirteenth" jinx.

BULL MAN IN CHATEAU

"Scotty the Bull Man," caretaker of one of the world's most famous elephants, and Marian Washington, eight-year-old daughter of a noted song writer, will be interviewed by Edward Everett Horton, in the Chateau Saturday night.

When Horton turns his X-raying searchlight on his guest stars many interesting facts should be revealed for the daughter is a champion junior "horsemanship" and "Scotty" is valet for the most temperamental pachyderm in the Al G. Barnes circus. The full-hour variety show begins on the NBC red network at 9:30 p. m.

Little Marian Washington, whose father has written many well-known songs, has won numerous equestrienne events, blue ribbons and trophies in horse shows in the West. Her appearance in Chateau makes her one of Hollywood's youngest radio performers. "Scotty the Bull Man" is caretaker for "Ruthie," 85-year-old circus elephant. "Ruthie" was one of the elephants to perform for Wallace Beery years ago when Beery was an animal trainer in a circus. "Scotty," who says he has no other name, will reveal some of the interesting happenings during the years he has handled the fickle "Ruthie."

AT THE CLIFTONA

Wallace Beery plays one of his new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer story "Old Hutch," which opens tonight at the Cliftona Theatre.

AT THE GRAND

Another chapter of the "Phantom Rider" is scheduled at the Grand theatre Friday and Saturday in conjunction with "Yellowstone," starring Henry Hunter, Judith Barrett and Alan Hale.

For him to exhibit money in such denominations would be madness. Accordingly, he goes to work in order to impress his fellow townspeople, hoping that it will appear more possible to cash a thousand dollar bill later.

AT THE CIRCLE

Overturning of a stagecoach at high speed with eight passengers inside was proof that there are thrills in making movies as real as those seen on the screen of the Circle Theatre Friday and Saturday, where Republic's "Winds of the Wasteland" presents John Wayne in a thrilling action picture of the old stagecoach days of the west.

Fortunately the horses were just gathering speed as they swept around a turn into the main street of Crescent City, and no one was seriously hurt. The mishap occurred during the making of the thrilling stagecoach race which features the picture.

LANDON MEETS PINCHOT, WHITE TO DRAFT PLANS

Observers Believe Party
May Become Liberal
Under Leadership

EARLY WORK SCHEDULED

Drastic Changes Possible in G.O.P. Program

TOPEKA, Kan., Nov. 20.—(UP)—The scheduled meeting here Saturday of Gov. Alf M. Landon with two of his staunchest liberal supporters during the presidential campaign brought speculation today on the possible liberalizing of the Republican party.

The governor would not comment on the conference with former Gov. Gifford Pinchot by Pennsylvania and William Allen White, Emporia, Kan., editor, other than to say "we may discuss politics." He indicated one or two others may attend.

Pinchot and White are foremost in the ranks of liberal GOP leadership. Their presence in a conference with the defeated presidential candidate who already has urged an active permanent party organization may portend a more liberal tinge and the scrapping of the Liberty League influence.

Talked to Hamilton

The conference follows close behind a recent meeting of Gov. Landon and his former campaign manager, National Chairman John D. M. Hamilton. On that occasion both emphasized the need of an organization active "more than four months before election" and Hamilton left announcing he would set up permanent headquarters in Washington soon.

It is possible the meeting was called to perfect plans for the permanent organization.

Gov. Landon said he was certain Hamilton would not be at the meeting here Saturday which will be a dinner at the executive mansion.

It was understood the others who may attend "just for a good talk," probably would be publishers.

DARBY TO OPEN BIDS SATURDAY FOR SCHOOL JOB

Members of the Darby township Board of Education will open bids Saturday noon for the construction of an addition to the school at Darby.

The estimated cost on the addition is $54,750. Voters approved a $30,000 bond issue and a grant of $24,750 has been granted by PWA.

New York's version of the World Fair will cost $125,000,000. It's going to take a lot of fan dancers to liquidate that deficit.

Death Serious Blow

SUICIDE of Roger Salengro, French Socialist minister of the interior, has shaken France's political structure to the foundation. Persecuted as an alleged "war deserter" in spite of repeated official exonerations, the 46 year-old minister, storm center of political strife during his six months' regime, ended his life in his home at Lillie following a new attack on his war record. Fearing a political crisis that would rival the repercussions of the Stavisky scandal, the French government immediately imposed a rigorous censorship on news of the suicide. Premier Blum, himself, had vigorously defended his cabinet associate, asserting that an innocent man was being hounded to destruction because of his liberal political convictions.

SCOUT DISTRICT TO INCLUDE ALL RURAL SECTIONS

Many Advantages Available For Youths of County Through Program

COMMITTEEMEN SOUGHT

Score of Merit Badges to Deal With Agriculture

Rural areas and smaller communities of Pickaway county, in addition to Circleville, will benefit from the reorganization of Scouting. Williamsport, Ashville, and New Holland will be included in the Pickaway district of the Central Ohio Area Council, which was formed at the Boy Scout rally held last Monday evening at Memorial Hall, with representatives from troops located in those communities among those present. Also included are friends of scouting in Washington township and Jackson township.

James I. Smith, newly elected chairman for this district, announced that committee members would be selected from these groups to supplement the Circleville committee.

Most in Rural Areas

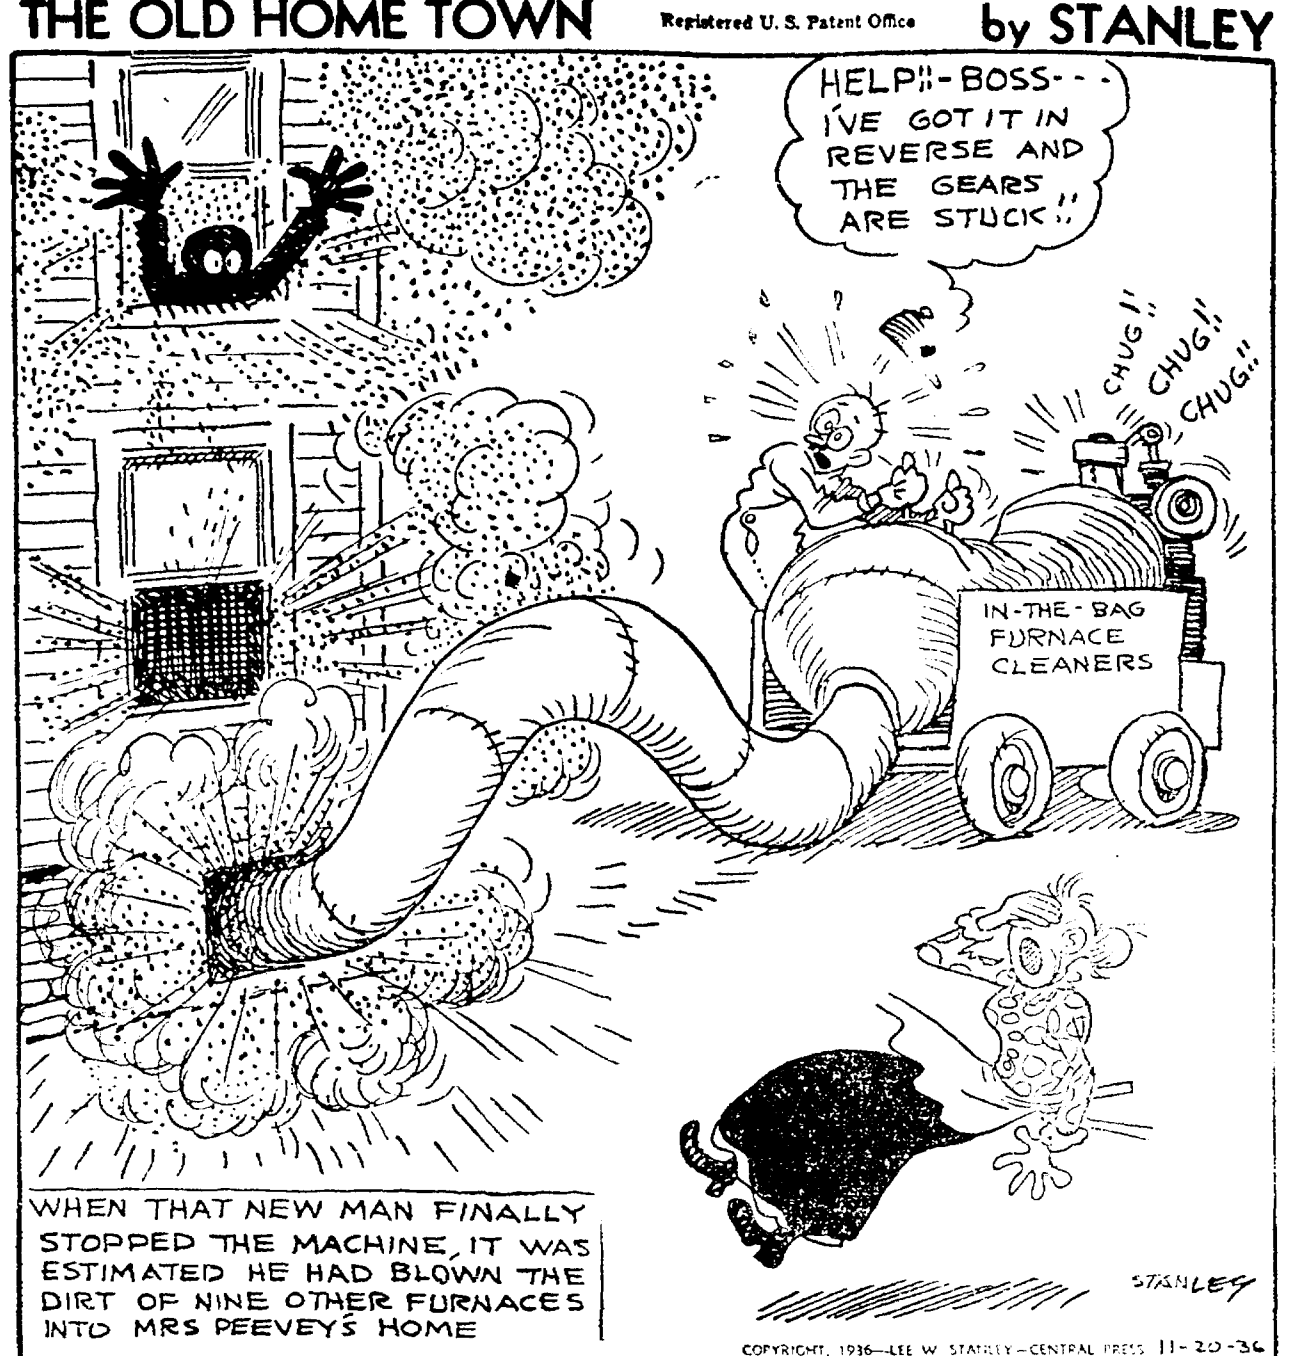

Robert H. Heistand, scout executive of the Central Ohio Area Council, of which the Pickaway district is now a part, said that studies made by his office revealed that more than 50 per cent of all boys of Scout age in the United States live in communities of less than 2,500 population — that is, in what the Census Bureau terms rural areas. Boys of these communities have special programs and interests, and to meet their needs the Boy Scouts of America has developed its rural program.

Rural boys take to scouting in a way which reinforces the life on the farm, by making the boy's farm activities more interesting and purposeful. He may learn to be a better farmer, and he finds a rich field of pre-occupational exploration in Scouting's Merit Badge program. Although practically everyone is now familiar with scouting, few persons know about the distinctly rural interests which it includes. Among the 101 merit badge subjects the following relate very definitely to farming: Agriculture, Farm Home, and its Planning, Farm Layout and Building Arrangement, Soil Management, Farm Mechanics, Farm Records, Animal Industry, Dairying, Gardening, Hog and Pork Production, Landscape Architecture, Poultry, Beef Production, Fruit Culture, Corn Farming, Cotton Farming, Horsemanship, Sheep Farming, Forestry, Citrus Fruit Culture, Blacksmith, Bee Keeping, First Aid to Animals, Nut Culture, and Pigeon Raising. In addition to the Merit Badges, the requirements for Tenderfoot, Second Class and First Class Scout rank contain numerous optional requirements that relate to the boy's own everyday experiences on the farm.

Much of rural scouting has been developed within the last few years under the leadership of O. H. Benson, national director of rural scouting. There are eighteen members of the national committee on rural scouting who have been of great service in the development of an adaptable, workable and result-getting program for rural boys. Included on this committee is Louis J. Taber, of

Lutherans Enjoy Novel Program

The regular meeting of Trinity Lutheran Brotherhood held last evening was very novel and interesting.

In the absence of Pres. Luther Bower, Vice President Charles H. Walters was in charge of the meeting. The religious opening consisted of singing of the hymn, Jesus Savior Pilot Me, the reading of the 103rd Psalm and prayer appropriate to the Thanksgiving season, closing with the entire Brotherhood joining in singing "Work for the Night is Coming."

After the introduction of visitors, the usual business procedure was gone through with. In the announcements of future meetings, the Rev. A. L. Troutman emphasized the congregational Thanksgiving service to be held on next Wednesday evening at 7:30 o'clock.

After the declaration of recess, E. E. Wolf and his committee served oyster soup, celery, doughnuts and coffee.

Meeting again called to order, Vice-President Walters introduced Dudley Carpenter as chairman in charge of the entertainment. This part of the meeting was opened by the Brotherhood singing the National Thanksgiving hymn, "Come Ye Thankful People, Come."

The History of Thanksgiving was presented in a novel way by M. A. Sensesbrenner, he giving credit to his little son "Jimmy" for having written the detailed description of how it all happened. Hailaire Haecker delighted the audience with his accordion numbers.

bers, "Carlioca," "When a Gypsy Plays His Violin" and "Green Eyes."

Mr. Carpenter called on various members to give at least one reason for their thankfulness at this time, this being followed by testing out the men on their knowledge of the nicknames of past presidents of the United States.

Mr. Haecker was again called back and entertained while the cast of "Tank Town Players" set the stage for the pantomime, "The Wooing of Priscilla," the part of Priscilla being taken by Charles H. Weidinger, Mrs. Mullen by Jack Foreman, Miles Standish by Gladden Troutman and John Alden by Charles H. Walters. The play being read by Dudley Carpenter. This story so closely connected with the early settlers of Plymouth was most appropriate for this season of the year and was quite pleasing to the audience.

The next regular meeting will be held on Thursday evening, at 7:30 o'clock, with D. L. Tracy in charge of the lunch and Luther Bower, Charles H. Walters and J. D. Hummel responsible for a variety program.

Lutherans Enjoy Novel Program

The regular meeting of Trinity Lutheran Brotherhood held last evening was very novel and interesting.

In the absence of Pres. Luther Bower, Vice President Charles H. Walters was in charge of the meeting. The religious opening consisted of singing of the hymn, Jesus Savior Pilot Me, the reading of the 103rd Psalm and prayer appropriate to the Thanksgiving season, closing with the entire Brotherhood joining in singing "Work for the Night is Coming."

After the introduction of visitors, the usual business procedure was gone through with. In the announcements of future meetings, the Rev. V. L. Troutman emphasized the congregational Thanksgiving service to be held on next Wednesday evening at 7:30 o'clock.

After the declaration of recess, E. E. Wolf and his committee served oyster soup, celery, doughnuts and coffee.

Meeting again called to order, Vice-President Walters introduced Dudley Carpenter as chairman in charge of the entertainment. This part of the meeting was opened by the Brotherhood singing the National Thanksgiving hymn, "Come Ye Thankful People, Come."

The History of Thanksgiving was presented in a novel way by M. A. Sensesbrenner, he giving credit to his little son "Jimmy" for having written the detailed description of how it all happened.

Hallaire Haacker delighted the audience with his accordion numbers.

bers, "Carloca," "When a Gypsy Plays His Violin" and "Green Eyes."

Mr. Carpenter called on various members to give at least one reason for their thankfulness at this time, this being followed by testing out the men on their knowledge of the nicknames of past presidents of the United States.

Mr. Haacker was again called back and entertained while the cast of "Tank Town Players" set the stage for the pantomime, "The Wooing of Priscilla," the part of Priscilla being taken by Charles H. Weidinger, Mrs. Mullen by Jack Foreman, Miles Standish by Gladden Troutman and John Alden by Charles H. Walters, the play being read by Dudley Carpenter. This story so closely connected with the early settlers of Plymouth was most appropriate for this season of the year and was quite pleasing to the audience.

The next regular meeting will be held on Thursday evening, at 7:30 o'clock, with D. L. Tracy in charge of the lunch and Luther Bower, Charles H. Walters and J. D. Hummel responsible for a variety program.

GUARANTEED RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

Common constipation is usually due to meals low in "bulk." Pills and drugs give only temporary relief. The sensible thing to do is to put "bulk" back into your meals.

Millions of people get this needed "bulk" in a delicious cereal: Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. Its "bulk" is much like that in leafy vegetables. Within the body, it absorbs moisture, forms a soft mass, gently cleanses the system.

Some years ago, an investigation was made among thousands of ALL-BRAN users. 98 per cent found it satisfactory. Only 2 per cent had the type of constipation that would not respond to ALL-BRAN.

ALL-BRAN is guaranteed. Try it a week. If not satisfactory, your money will be refunded by the Kellogg Company.

Just eat two tablespoonfuls daily, either as cereal or in cooked dishes. ALL-BRAN is sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

LABOR ON FARM REDUCES W.P.A. PAYROLL LISTS

Men Assigned to Husk Corn Transferred to Another

50 WOMEN ARE EMPLOYED

Workers Employed on Road, Bridge Jobs Continue

WPA officials have only 130 workers on the payroll and estimated 275 were now on private employment, largely corn husking.

Out of the 130 listed, 50 are women at the sewing centers. Officials reported 65 men were employed on the Pike Hole creek and Hargus creek bridge projects and 15 were working on Carson road, Darby township, and on a Perry township road job near the Crown-over mill.

The assignment of workers to corn husking has been made through the National Reemployment service. This office reported it had sufficient requests on hand to keep the workers busy for some time. As fast as they have completed husking on one farm they would be assigned to another.

The men employed on the bridge and road jobs will not be transferred to private employment, officials explained, as this work is being rushed to completion before winter weather begins.

FORMER G.O.P. CHIEFTAIN DIES

Maurice Maschke, 68, III
Nine Mnoths; Rites to Be Sunday

CLEVELAND, Nov. 20 — (UP) — Maurice Maschke, 68, whose political genius had made him a Republican high commander in metropolitan Cuyahoga county for 40 years, died last night of pneumonia. He contracted the disease six days ago but he had been ill for nine months and his strength had ebbed slowly.

Maschke had been a friend of presidents but numbered hundreds of "just plain folks" among his close friends. He was a former Republican national committee man from Ohio. He had held scores of other offices ranging from precinct committeeman.

The funeral will be held Sunday from the Temple of Rabbi A.
H. Silver, long his friend. Burial will be in Mayfield cemetery.

His family was grouped about his bed as Maschke died. His wife, his son, Maurice, Jr., and his daughter Helen Maschke Hanna, were present. His brother, Dr. A.
S. Maschke, one of his attending physicians, had just lifted the oxygen tent that had been brought to his bedside in the hope of saving his life.

Maschke was in a coma all day yesterday.

He last spoke at a birthday anniversary party in his honor at Republican headquarters on Oct.
17. He contracted a cold that led to his fatal illness.

After he left law school, Maschke started building a political machine that had dominated every office in the city. He had helped to make governors and presidents. It was ironical that he died at a time when his party was suffering from its worst setback in years.

ARCHDUKE OTTO PREPARES FOR RULER'S THRONE

VIENNA, Nov. 20 — (UP) — Prince Ernst Rudiger Von Staremberg called on all members of the dissolved Heimwehr today to join forces as a corporate body with the monarchists for "the early return of the Hapsburgs."

Th prince's action coincided with the 24th birthday of young Archduke Otto of Hapsburg. He celebrated it in exile in his chateau at Steenokkerzeel, in Belgium, where he has resided since the post World War revolution overthrew the throne.

Otto was buoyed with hope that he can eat his next birthday cake in the royal palace here — ruler of Austria as head of the ancient house of Hapsburg, if not emperor of Austria and Hungary, as of old.

Monster legitimist demonstrations were held in Vienna and many other cities and towns throughout Austria last night in celebration of the eve of "our emperor's" birthday.

The Hapsburg prince — or archduke — is an honorary citizen of 1,451 towns and villages.

The monarchists conveyed as birthday greeting to Otto the news that Prince Von Staremberg and his former Heimwehr (home guard) semi-military organization numbering several thousands officially had joined the legitimist movement.

YULE TO BE HEAVY IN NORTHWEST

Retail Volume in 6 States
Expected to Approach
Boom Year Level

ST. PAUL (UP)—The Northwest today heads into the most profitable holiday trading season since the boom days of 1929.

Wholesale houses here are rushing orders to retailers in ever-increasing volume, as the merchant in the city and at the country store prepare for the heaviest volume of Christmas business in seven years.

Indications now are that December retail business in the six northwest states of Minnesota, the Dakotas, Montana, Wisconsin and Iowa (plus upper Michigan will approach the 1929 level. Authority for this statement is John H. DeWitt, trade extension manager of the Minneapolis civic and commerce association.

More Spending Assured
The Agricultural Outlook, prepared by the editorial staffs of five mid-west farm papers, predicted that regardless of the drouth, there will be money to spend throughout the Northwest and in all rural areas in the country.

With farm cash income from sales and AAA payments scheduled to reach an estimated $7-$50,000,000, supplementary income from work done off their farms will swell the farmers' bank-roll this year to approximately $9,000,000,000 the Outlook said.

And sensing this increase in trade, and making sure they had merchandise to meet the inevitable demand, retailers ordered out their Christmas merchandise early this season. Wholesalers had difficulty filling orders in many lines, and manufacturers were unable to replenish jobbers' stocks
as fast as demanded.

In 1935, according to federal census figures, retail trade through the six states and upper Michigan was approximately $2-900,000,000. DeWitt estimates this total will be swelled to $3-500,000,000 this year.

Huge Gasoline Order Placed
SAN FRANCISCO (UP)—United Air Lines have placed what is said to be the largest gasoline order. It calls for a minimum delivery of 27,000,000 gallons of gasoline in the next three years.

Monster legitimist demonstrations were held in Vienna and many other cities and towns throughout Austria last night in celebration of the eve of "our emperor's" birthday.

The Hapsburg prince — or archduke — is an honorary citizen of 1,451 towns and villages.

The monarchists conveyed as birthday greeting to Otto the news that Prince Von Starhemberg and his former Heimwehr (home guard) semi-military organization numbering several thousands officially had joined the legitimist movement.

YULE BUYING TO BE HEAVY IN NORTHWEST

Retail Volume in 6 States
Expected to Approach
Boom Year Level

ST. PAUL (UP)—The Northwest today heads into the most profitable holiday trading season since the boom days of 1929.

Wholesale houses here are rushing orders to retailers in ever-increasing volume, as the merchant in the city and at the country store prepare for the heaviest volume of Christmas business in seven years.

Indications now are that December retail business in the six northwest states of Minnesota, the Dakotas, Montana, Wisconsin and Iowa (plus upper Michigan) will approach the 1929 level. Authority for this statement is John H. DeWitt, trade extension manager of the Minneapolis civic and commerce association.

More Spending Assured

The Agricultural Outlook, prepared by the editorial staffs of five mid-west farm papers, predicted that regardless of the drought, there will be money to spend throughout the Northwest and in all rural areas in the country.

With farm cash income from sales and AAA payments scheduled to reach an estimated $7-$800,000,000, supplementary income from work done off their farms will swell the farmers' bankroll this year to approximately $900,000,000 the Outlook said.

And sensing this increase in trade, and making sure they had merchandise to meet the inevitable demand, retailers ordered their Christmas merchandise early this season. Wholesalers had difficulty filling orders in many lines, and manufacturers were unable to replenish jobbers' stocks as fast as demanded.

In 1935, according to federal census figures, retail trade through the six states and upper Michigan was approximately $2,900,000,000. DeWitt estimates this total will be swelled to $3,500,000,000 this year.

Huge Gasoline Order Placed

SAN FRANCISCO (UP)—United Air Lines have placed what is said to be the largest gasoline order. It calls for a minimum delivery of 27,000,000 gallons of gasoline in the next three years.

CITY OFFICIALS

FRIENDS: The more you hear about disposal plants and their operation the more you realize Circleville has an exceptional problem for a city of its size. Few cities in central Ohio have varied industries such as are located here, discharging many types of wastes into the Scioto river. In ironing out the numerous difficulties I trust officials will take every angle into consideration and build a plant that is efficient and large enough to take care of this city for many years to come. Many cities have made mistakes in planning sewage disposal plants and found them extremely costly. Build a plant that is a monument to Circleville.

CIRCUITEER

TO POLICE DEPARTMENT

OFFICERS: Some time ago you conducted a drive on traffic violators. After a few fines were handed out motorists observed laws more carefully. In recent weeks I have heard numerous complaints of traffic conditions. Motorists have made speedways of Court street and E. Main street. I suggest some of the officers take that new car out and conduct some surveys on these streets to teach motorists regulations are not to be violated.

CIRCUITEER

TO HIGHWAY OFFICIALS

DEAR FOLK: You are to be thanked for "roughing up" the dangerous curve on Route 22 near New Holland that caused numerous accidents in recent months. I hope your next project is improving the curve on N. Court street at the edge of the city. This curve is confusing to out-of-town motorists. You know its record for accidents.

CIRCUITEER

TO COUNCIL

GENTLEMEN: I admired the statement made by one of your members Wednesday night that council give Circleville business men a boost by providing better lighting in the downtown district. It seems council has sufficient funds for numerous projects of all types yet it always has an excuse to offer when lights are mentioned for the business section. For the last three years Pumpkin Show lights were left up for the holiday season and merchants realized how much it meant to their businesses to have good lights. This year the fixtures could not be kept up unless about $300 was expended. The fund could not be raised. It would be a wise move for councilmen to visit a few central Ohio cities and observe their lighting facilities. Circleville ranks at the bottom of the list. Business is the life of any city, and councilmen should do everything in their power to provide better business. Stop thinking up excuses and start thinking up means of providing better lights for Circleville.

CIRCUITEER

TO AUTO PARKERS

MOTORISTS: Parking lines have been provided for your time after time, but many of you ignore the proper places in which to place your automobiles. There is expense involved in painting the lines year after year, and it is your duty to yourself and your fellow-motorists to observe the proper lanes. Circleville has a parking law, enforced once every year or so, that commands you to place your vehicle within these zones. Why would it not be just as easy to put your automobile inside the yellow lines, instead of straddling them as many of you do. Some who park in an illegal manner are the first to protest if they find someone else has prevented their parking between lines.

CIRCUITEER

TO HEALTH OFFICIALS

MEDICOS: I hope you continue your program to immunize school children of Circleville and Pickaway county from the possibility of contracting the dread diphtheria. Any precautions you can take to safeguard the boys and girls will be appreciated by parents universally. Co-operation of parents, and the children, too, is necessary if the program is to be successful.

CIRCUITEER

TO FOOTBALL PLAYERS

ATHLETES: You have completed the most successful season a Circleville high school team has had in many years, and you deserve congratulations from the fans of the city. It has been a long while since a Tiger team has won three football games and scored 54 points. Your selection of Don Henry as honorary captain for the last season was wise, and your election of Earl Garner to direct the play of the 1937 eleven was just, too. Henry was one of the outstanding gridirers in central Ohio this year. Garner will prove a hard-working and conscientious leader.

CIRCUITEER

TO ORGANIZATIONS

CITIZENS: It is the time of the year when every civic and patriotic organization in Circleville should be making its Christmas plans. What are you going to do to help your fellow-men during the holiday season? There are many outlets for holiday enthusiasm. The Red Cross drive is on, and that organization always needs assistance; the Public Health league is about ready to embark on its Christmas seal sale, the proceeds going to fight tuberculosis; the Benevolent society always lists some worthy needy families for assistance. Many of the church groups and several fraternal societies do splendid work. There is always a way to make some other person happy during the holiday season, and I urge all organizations to strive to do some civic good during the next month or six weeks.

CIRCUITEER

World At A Glance

Washington expects to see President Roosevelt's cabinet about three-fifths made over soon after the beginning of his second term. Most certain to retain his post is Secretary of State Cordell Hull. The Tennesseean is recognized as having been the administration's most valuable single asset in the last two years and especially during the campaign period. That is all the more remarkable considering that his earlier influence at the executive mansion was generally regarded as negligible. If ever a statesman made good on sheer merit, in the face of tremendous difficulties, Hull did.

MORGENTHAU

Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, Jr., presumably will hold over if he chooses to do so. There is no particular reason to believe that he will not so choose. Still, one hears the suggestion made that maybe he will not, because of private business interests. The best guess, however, is that he will remain.

There was much gossip for a while that the administration wanted to unload Secretary of the Interior Harold I. Ickes, because of his constant friction with Federal Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins, whose judgment the White House seemed to rate above Ickes'—does yet, possibly. But Ickes proved to be an extraordinarily effective New Deal election campaigner; it would be politically very poor form to retire him from the cabinet as a sequel to it. And Secretary of Agriculture

Henry A. Wallace appears to be pretty solid in his department. Wallace perhaps is more a theorist than a practical farmer, but he is a brilliant theorist and practical farmers apparently like his theories. Hull, Morgenthau, Ickes and Wallace? They look like permanencies. Woodring, Cummings, Farley, Swanson, Roper and Frances Perkins?

STOP-CAPS

Woodring is only acting secretary of war, since the recent death of Secretary George H. Dern, in office. He already could have been appointed to the regular secretaryship if that had been the intention. One would surmise that that ISN'T the intention.

Cummings never was anything except a stop-gap appointee to the attorney generalship. The late Senator Thomas J. Walsh was to have had that position, but died before the Roosevelt administration came into power. Cummings, then slated for the governor generalship of the Philippines, got the place "temporarily," it was stated. His tenure did not prove to be so temporary. It continues to date. Cummings hasn't been such a brilliant attorney general, either. What the supreme court has done to his cases is a plenty. Chief C. G. Man J. Edgar Hoover has been more prominent than he. Not that Hoover is advertised for the attorney generalship. But Cummings again is mentioned for the Philippines — as high commissioner to the new commonwealth, a post relinquished by Governor-Elect Frank Murphy of Michigan. That seems to be a hint that Cummings has outlived his usefulness in the justice department.

SWANSON, FARLEY RESIGNATION?

The health of Secretary of the Navy Swanson is failing; his resignation on that ground is anticipated.

James A. Farley's usefulness as a combined campaign manager and cabinet officer is about ended. He has to quit as one or the other, and his postmaster generalship is the likeliest of his two activities to be surrendered. Roper, with his proposed 15 to 20-million dollar unemployment census, wants to become arbiter between capital and labor—a vastly more important stunt than the secretaryship of commerce. As for Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins? — her department hasn't accomplished much in the last four years. Her prime "trouble shooter," Edward F. McGrady, is spoken of as her logical successor. Also Mayor Fiorello H. La Guardia of New York is mentioned for the job. Oh, my! If Fiorello H. La Guardia were to be pitched into the ring against Daniel C. Roper! A massacre!

Leg and Foot Troubles Due to Cold, Exposure

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

WHEN YOU think about pain in the feet or legs, it is instinctive to suppose that it is due to some trouble with the nerves or the muscles, or the bones and joints but, as a matter of fact, there is a large group of disorders of a more or less painful kind that is due to derangement of the blood vessels of the extremities. These have been studied quite extensively recently and, in fact, there is almost a specialty in medicine, which is that of vascular diseases of the extremities.

The subject is pertinent at this time of year, because one of the forms, namely chilblains, is very likely to be due to cold and exposure. People who ever have been subject to chilblains should begin about this time of year to take every precaution to prevent it during the winter weather that is ahead of us.

Chilblain a pernio occurs only on certain groups of people whose blood vessels are not extremely responsive. The temperature and nutrition of the foot are due to the ability of the small arteries and capillaries to respond to changes of temperature. If you could see a foot undergoing an attack of chilblains (this is practically impossible, because the first stage occurs while the foot is covered up), you would see that in cold, wet weather the vessels respond by extreme contraction so that the foot is very pale. Very little blood is brought to the capillary vessels and the blood in them stagnates, leading to the second stage in which the foot is blotchy and purplish and somewhat sensitive.

Tender, Also

It is also tender so that the owner of the feet goes indoors, takes off shoes and stockings, and puts the feet before a radiator or fire. This causes the arterioles to open up, but since their nervous control is not normal they overdo it, and the dilated capillaries become flushed with blood. Some of this blood is forced out into the tissue spaces so that the foot is now red and swollen and tender. Sometimes this transudation of fluid causes enough pressure so that the skin is broken, leading to a slight ulceration, which is known as broken chilblain.

Mild and brief attacks of this do not cause any permanent changes, but if the exposure is prolonged or repeated there is some fibrosis around the blood vessels and calcified spots occur, particularly between the heel.

The condition runs in families, which emphasizes the fact that it is primarily due to poor nervous control of the blood vessels. It is definitely related to other diseases of the vessels of the extremities called Raynaud's disease, Berger's disease and erythromelalgia, as well as to the condition of lameness and pain which occurs on exertion in middle-aged and elderly people with recognized hardening of the arteries, called intermittent claudication.

We will discuss these diseases and something of their modern treatment tomorrow.

The BLOODHOUNDS BY WALTER S. MASTERMAN

READ THIS FIRST:
Jack Reid, bent on punishing the chapel of the ancient Abbey of Beveridge, for a valuable jewel of revenge, first, with a dark figure emerges from the crypt below and again when the light of dawn, wearing pajamas and carrying a candle, comes into the chapel and walks towards the altar.
(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 2

SIR HENRY was now standing in front of the altar, Reid observed, holding the lighted candle before him with a strange look of perplexity on his face. It was difficult to follow exactly what happened, for the light was between the other waiting man and the baronet, but Reid's torch stepped quickly from hand to hand; there was a swift movement, and Sir Henry gave a sudden cry which sounded like "Escort!" and with a gasp that ended in a stifled cough lurched forward on the stones. The candle fell from his hands with a crash and rolled on the floor. Blackness came down on the scene, and bright spots swam before Reid's eyes.

For a moment he felt sick and giddy, and heaved against the wall; then his courage returned, and he sprang down the steps, holding his torch as he did so. There was no one to be seen; only the body of the baronet lying sprawled before the altar, his face horribly twisted.

In his chest was the hilt of a knife or dagger buried deep in his body.

One glance was sufficient—the baronet was dead beyond all doubt. Reid saw he could be of no use here. The chapel was empty as far as he could see, but he never stayed to make a search; his own position was too precarious. He hurried through the chapel and closed the door, locking it in feverish haste. He felt safer with the massive locked doors between him and whatever lurked in the crypt, but his glance went restlessly to the altar that led down to the crypt. No sound broke the stillness.

Cool now, he went cautiously along the corridor, listening intently for any sound, but the whole house was silent with a brooding stillness. His hat slipped made no sound on the polished stones of the old passage-way—stones worn by the feet of the monks who had the cloisters in silent meditation in the monastic days.

He reached the entrance to the cellar and paused again. Safety lay in instant flight, but a curious inclination to see whether any alarm might follow delayed him. The pure moonlight flooded the open courtyard, and he glanced out of the lancet window and stared with cold intensity. The moon was shining full upon the opposite side of the ancient building, showing every stone and the creeper that clung to the walls.

A window on the first floor was open, and a girl was gazing out from the lattice with a look of utterable horror on her beautiful face. Seen in her white night attire, with the neck thrown open, as though she were stifling, she looked like a young saint in distress. He had never seen a fairer sight. He knew the girl by sight—Sylvia Lawrence—and had met her in the grounds with her two charges, the Severing twins, but had taken no particular notice of her—women did not interest him. Here was a vision that would remain with him to his last day. A holy virgin transfigured by the moonlight—but one in an agony of apprehension. Reid tore himself away, and descended the cellar steps, with the vision of the lovely, distressed face before him.

He picked up the wadded suit and stuffed it into his bag with the gloves and papers, adding some bits of stone from the junk scattered about the place. Then he went head first through the aperture and slid noiselessly into the lake, replacing the iron bars carefully after him.

His ears were strained for some sound from the house above as he lay in the water, but none came, and he turned to the middle in the shadows. The croaking of frogs from the reeds and a faint greenish light in the sky betokened the coming of dawn, and a chill wind was blowing up. He dropped his bag, first pulling the running cord at the mouth tight. Then he swam and waded to the shore, and nudged for an overhanging board. It had been his hanging branch. Once hidden in the foliage he lay panting. He was safe now, and could think out his position.

The silent, mysterious death, without warning or even a struggle, was appalling; but he laughed cynically as he speculated on the possible discovery of his bag, and the delight of some enterprising young Sherlock Holmes at the find. There were no marks to identify the owner either of the suit or sack. There was absolutely nothing to connect him with the crime, or any article of his that might set those bloodhounds on the track. He picked up his coat and waistcoat and boots and walked along the edge of the lake in the shallow water till he came to firm ground, and then proceeded across an open field of rough grass in his stocking feet to his cottage.

If his burglary had been successful he would have returned to his cottage in any case, for he was too old a hand to leave the village. Now that things had turned out differently, he would stay and watch events. He took off his wet clothes and pulled on a pair of pajamas and a worn dressing gown. In the homely surroundings of his room the horror was less acute, and he could review the situation calmly. He helped himself to a stiff whiskey to keep out the cold, and wrung out his wet clothes in the old sink in the corner of the small kitchen and hung them to dry. Then he returned to his sitting room.

He smiled cynically as he thought of all his careful preparation. A giant oak, a monster in decay, stood about 50 yards from the cottage. He had found out all about that oak; nothing escaped his fertile mind. It was bare of branches to a height of about 10 feet, and then forked into three mighty stems. He had climbed up to the fork and found exactly what he wanted. Between the stems the inside was hollow and rotten; no one would guess it seeing it from below. Into this cavity he had intended to let down his catch, and cover it carefully with rotting wood.

There it would remain for a year at least, for he was no novice at the game. Even if he had been suspected and the police had come to search! He could picture them digging up the garden, probing in the old ditch, and going down the well—all the old-fashioned places of concealment. Hadn't he gone over it a score of times? Police and plainclothes officers interrogating him while he told his simple story. How he had stayed at the inn till closing time, gossiping with Hucks, the landlady, and walked home with Dick Noakes, a farm hand, and then slept till the morning. All quite straight and above board. It had been his method for years. There had been many similar cunningly devised caches scattered over the land where his hauls had lain hidden for years, maturing like good wine until he could safely turn them into cash. No hasty disposal, or dealings with a "fence" for him.

As a person on a visit to Devonshire, blameless and almost blind, he had obtained quite a good haul, and a small cavity in the rocks held the plunder safely for months till the hue and cry was over.

Who was he, and what was his origin? He would have given much to know. He had been found, a four-month-old baby abandoned on Wimbledon Common, with no sign or mark to show what woman had left him there. A woman, surely, for he had been placed in a conspicuous position and warmly wrapped in blankets in a basket, with two pound notes pinned on the cover. So much they had told him at the orphanage when he was old enough to be informed that he was there by charity, and had no parents or relatives in the world. No one had adopted him—perhaps he had not been an attractive infant, and he had never known any home but that institution.

There he had grown to consciousness as a child. The scanty food, the drab uniform, and stern discipline had been his daily surroundings. He had known nothing of the outside world.

Almost as soon as he could walk he had been told that his was to be no idle life. He was set to work at menial jobs in the spare time when he was not being instructed. Work, he had been informed, was for him a necessity, and as soon as he was old enough some useful job must be found for him to get him away from the institution. It was almost an insult that he should take so long in growing up.

His name had been written on the slip of paper, a name he had tried to forget, and had borne many aliases since then. Some efforts by the police had been made to discover his origin, but after futile inquiries they had dismissed the matter as a common case of an unwanted child, and no more trouble was taken. The people at the institution had merely called him Jack, and the old name had remained dormant in his brain and almost forgotten. But with the power of reading came knowledge and the wild longing of a caged thing for liberty. He was a wiry, active youngster, with restless dark eyes and a mop of black hair, and hungry—always hungry, he remembered.

And then he had run away—quite easily, and the institution knew him no more.

CIRCUITEER

TO COUNCIL

GENTLEMEN: I admired the statement made by one of your members Wednesday night that council give Circleville business men a boost by providing better lighting in the downtown district. It seems council has sufficient funds for numerous projects of all types yet it always has an excuse to offer when lights are mentioned for the business section. For the last three years Pumpkin Show lights were left up for the holiday season and merchants realized how much it meant to their businesses to have good lights. This year the fixtures could not be kept up unless about $300 was expended. The fund could not be raised. It would be a wise move for councilmen to visit a few central Ohio cities and observe their lighting facilities. Circleville ranks at the bottom of the list. Business is the life of any city, and councilmen should do everything in their power to provide better business. Stop thinking up excuses and start thinking up means of providing better lights for Circleville.

CIRCUITEER

TO AUTO PARKERS

MOTORISTS: Parking lines have been provided for you time after time, but many of you ignore the proper places in which to place your automobiles. There is expense involved in painting the lines year after year, and it is your duty to yourself and your fellow-motorists to observe the proper lanes. Circleville has a parking law, enforced once every year or so, that commands you to place your vehicle within these zones. Why would it not be just as easy to put your automobile inside the yellow lines, instead of straddling them as many of you do. Some who park in an illegal manner are the first to protest if they find someone else has prevented their parking between lines.

CIRCUITEER

TO HEALTH OFFICIALS

MEDICOS: I hope you continue your program to immunize school children of Circleville and Pickaway county from the possibility of contracting the dread diphtheria. Any precautions you can take to safeguard the boys and girls will be appreciated by parents universally. Co-operation of parents, and the children, too, is necessary if the program is to be successful.

CIRCUITEER

TO FOOTBALL PLAYERS

ATHLETES: You have completed the most successful season a Circleville high school team has had in many years, and you deserve congratulations from the fans of the city. It has been a long while since a Tiger team has won three football games and scored 54 points. Your selection of Don Henry as honorary captain for the last season was wise, and your election of Earl Garner to direct the play of the 1937 eleven was just, too. Henry was one of the outstanding gridders in central Ohio this year. Garner will prove a hard-working and conscientious leader.

CIRCUITEER

TO ORGANIZATIONS

CITIZENS: It is the time of the year when every civic and patriotic organization in Circleville should be making its Christmas plans. What are you going to do to help your fellow-men during the holiday season? There are many outlets for holiday enthusiasm. The Red Cross drive is on, and that organization always needs assistance; the Public Health league is about ready to embark on its Christmas seal sale, the proceeds going to fight tuberculosis; the Benevolent society always lists some worthy needy families for assistance. Many of the church groups and several fraternal societies do splendid work. There is always a way to make some other person happy during the holiday season, and I urge all organizations to strive to do some civic good during the next month or six weeks.

World At A Glance

—By—
Charles P. Stewart

Washington expects to see President Roosevelt's cabinet about three-fifths made over soon after the beginning of his second term. Most certain to retain his post is Secretary of State Cordell Hull. The Tennesseean is recognized as having been the administration's most valuable single asset in the last two years and especially during the campaign period. That is all the more remarkable considering that his earlier influence at the executive mansion was generally regarded as negligible. If ever a statesman made good on sheer merit, in the face of tremendous difficulties, Hull did.

MORGENTHAU

Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, Jr., presumably will hold over if he chooses to do so. There is no particular reason to believe that he will not so choose. Still, one hears the suggestion made that maybe he will not, because of private business interests. The best guess, however, is that he will remain.

There was much gossip for a while that the administration wanted to unload Secretary of the Interior Harold I. Ickes, because of his constant friction with Federal Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins, whose judgment the White House seemed to rate above Ickes'—does yet, possibly. But Ickes proved to be an extraordinarily effective New Deal election campaigner; it would be politically very poor form to retire him from the cabinet as a sequel to it. And Secretary of Agriculture

Henry A. Wallace appears to be pretty solid in his department. Wallace perhaps is more a theorist than a practical farmer, but he is a brilliant theorist and practical farmers apparently like his theories.

Hull, Morgenthau, Ickes and Wallace? They look like permanencies. Woodring, Cummings, Farley, Swanson, Roper and Frances Perkins?

STOP-CAPS

Woodring is only acting secretary of war, since the recent death of Secretary George H. Dern, in office. He already could have been appointed to the regular secretaryship if that had been the intention. One would surmise that that ISN'T the intention.

Cummings never was anything except a stop-gap appointee to the attorney generalship. The late Senator Thomas J. Walsh was to have had that position, but died before the Roosevelt administration came into power. Cummings, then slated for the governor generalship of the Philippines, got the place "temporarily," it was stated. His tenure did not prove to be so temporary. It continues to date. Cummings hasn't been such a brilliant attorney general, either. What the supreme court has done to his cases is a plenty. Chief G. man J. Edgar Hoover has been more prominent than he.

Not that Hoover is advertised for the attorney generalship. But Cummings again is mentioned for the Philippines—as high commissioner to the new commonwealth, a post relinquished by Governor-Elect Frank Murphy of Michigan. That seems to be a hint that Cummings has outlived his usefulness in the justice department.

SWANSON, FARLEY RESIGNATION?

The health of Secretary of the Navy Swanson is failing; his resignation on that ground is anticipated.

James A. Farley's usefulness as a combined campaign manager and cabinet officer is about ended. He has to quit as one or the other, and his postmaster generalship is the likeliest of his two activities to be surrendered.

Roper, with his proposed 15 to 20-million dollar unemployment census, wants to become arbiter between capital and labor—a vastly more important stunt than the secretaryship of commerce.

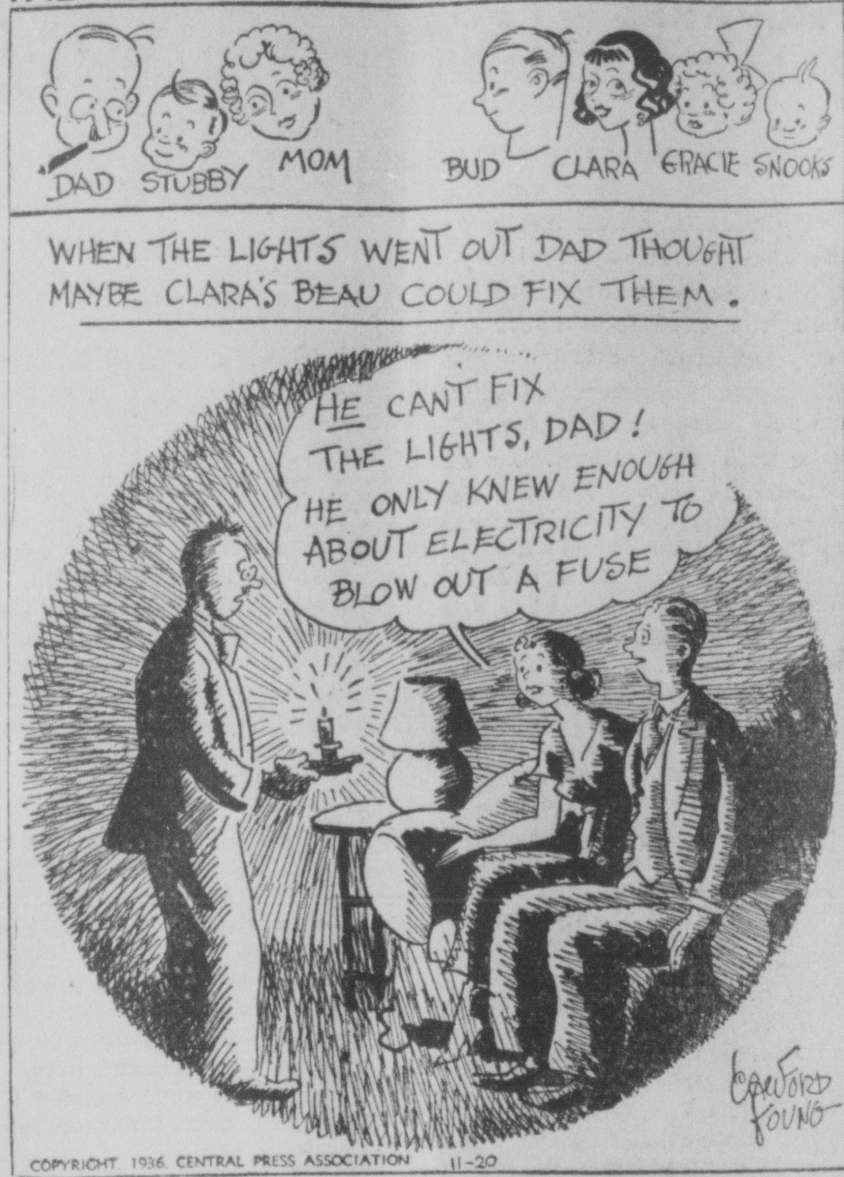

As for Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins?—her department hasn't accomplished much in the last four years.

Her prime "trouble shooter", Edward F. McGrady, is spoken of as her logical successor. Also Mayor Fiorello H. La Guardia of New York is mentioned for the job.

Oh, my! If Fiorello H. La Guardia were to be pitched into the ring against Daniel C. Roper! A massacre!

Leg and Foot Troubles Due to Cold, Exposure

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

WHEN YOU think about pain in the feet or legs, it is instinctive to suppose that it is due to some trouble with the nerves or the muscles, or the bones and joints but, as a matter of fact, there is a large group of disorders of a more or less painful kind that is due to derangement of the blood vessels of the extremities. These have been studied quite extensively recently and, in fact, there is almost a specialty in medicine, which is that of vascular diseases of the extremities.

The subject is pertinent at this time of year, because one of the forms, namely chilblains, is very likely to be due to cold and exposure. People who ever have been subject to chilblains should begin about this time of year to take every precaution to prevent it during the winter weather that is ahead of us.

Chilblain a pernio occurs only on certain groups of people whose blood vessels are not extremely responsive. The temperature and nutrition of the foot are due to the ability of the small arteries and capillaries to respond to changes of temperature. If you could see a foot undergoing an attack of chilblains (this is practically impossible, because the first stage occurs while the foot is covered up), you would see that in cold, wet weather the vessels respond by extreme contraction so that the foot is very pale. Very little blood is brought to the capillary vessels and the blood in them stagnates, leading to the second stage in which the foot is blotchy and purplish and somewhat sensitive.

Tender, Also

It is also tender so that the owner of the feet goes indoors, takes off shoes and stockings, and puts the feet before a radiator or fire. This causes the arterioles to open up, but since their nervous control is not normal they overdo it, and the dilated capillaries become flushed with blood. Some of this blood is forced out into the tissue spaces so that the foot is now red and swollen and tender. Sometimes this transudation of fluid causes enough pressure so that the skin is broken, leading to a slight ulceration, which is known as broken chilblain.

Mild and brief attacks of this do not cause any permanent changes, but if the exposure is prolonged or repeated there is some fibrosis around the blood vessels and calcified spots occur, particularly behind the heel.

The condition runs in families, which emphasizes the fact that it is primarily due to poor nervous control of the blood vessels. It is definitely related to other diseases of the vessels of the extremities called Raynaud's disease, Berger's disease and erythromelalgia, as well as to the condition of lameness and pain which occurs on exertion in middle-aged and elderly people with recognized hardening of the arteries, called intermittent claudication.

We will discuss these diseases and something of their modern treatment tomorrow.

The BLOODHOUNDS Bay

By WALTER S. MASTERMAN

COPYRIGHT, RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

READ THIS FIRST:
Jack Reid, bent on burglarizing the chapel of the ancient Abbey of Severing, for a valuable jeweled cross, is stunned, first, when a dark figure emerges from the crypt below and again when Sir Henry Seerling, wearing pajamas and carrying a candle, comes into the chapel and walks toward the altar.
(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 2

SIR HENRY was now standing in front of the altar, Reid observed, holding the lighted candle before him with a strange look of perplexity on his face. It was difficult to follow exactly what happened, for the light was between the other watching man and the baronet, but something stepped quickly from behind; there was a swift movement, and Sir Henry gave a sudden cry which sounded like "Escort", and with a gasp that ended in a stifled cough lurched forward on the stones. The candle fell from his hands with a crash and rolled on the floor. Blackness came down on the scene, and bright spots swam before Reid's eyes.

For a moment he felt sick and giddy, and leaned against the wall; then his courage returned, and he sprang down the steps, flashing his torch as he did so. There was no one to be seen; only the body of the baronet lying sprawled before the altar, his face horribly twisted.

In his chest was the hilt of a knife or dagger buried deep in his body.

One glance was sufficient—the baronet was dead beyond all doubt. Reid saw he could be of no use here. The chapel was empty as far as he could see, but he never stayed to make a search; his own position was too precarious. He hurried through the chapel and closed the door, locking it in feverish haste. He felt safer with the massive locked doors between him and whatever lurked in the chapel, but his glance was cast uneasily at the stair that led down to the crypt. No sound broke the stillness.

Cool now, he went cautiously along the corridor, listening intently for any sound, but the whole house was silent with a brooding stillness. His list slippers made no sound on the polished stones of the old passageway—stones worn by the feet of the monks who trod the cloisters in silent meditation in the monastic days.

He reached the entrance to the cellar and paused again. Safety lay in instant flight, but a curious inclination to see whether any alarm might follow delayed him. The pure moonlight flooded the open courtyard, and he glanced out of the lancet window and stared with cold intensity. The moon was shining full upon the opposite side of the ancient building, showing every stone and the creeper that clung to the walls.

A window on the first floor was open, and a girl was gazing out from the lattice with a look of utterable horror on her beautiful face. Seen in her white night attire, with the neck thrown open, as though she were stifling, she looked like a young saint in distress. He had never seen a fairer sight. He knew the girl by sight—Sylvia Lawrence—and had met her in the grounds with her two charges, the Severing twins, but had taken no particular notice of her—women did not interest him. Here was a vision that would remain with him to his last day. A holy virgin transfigured by the moonlight—but one in an agony of apprehension. Reid tore himself away, and descended the cellar steps with the vision of that lovely, distressed face before him.

He picked up the wading suit and stuffed it into his bag with the gloves and oars, adding some bits of stone from the junk scattered about the place. Then he went head first through the aperture and slid noiselessly into the lake, replacing the iron bars carefully after him.

His ears were strained for some sound from the house—some awful cry in the night—but none came, and he swam to the middle in the shadow. The croaking of frogs from the reeds and a faint greenish tinge in the sky betokened the coming of dawn, and a chill wind had sprung up. He dropped his bag, first pulling the running cord at the mouth tight. Then he swam and waded to the shore, and reached for an overhanging branch. Once hidden in the foliage he lay panting. He was safe now, and could think out his position.

The silent, mysterious death, without warning or even a struggle, was appalling; but he laughed cynically as he speculated on the possible discovery of his bag, and the delight of some enterprising young Sherlock Holmes at the find. There were no marks to identify the owner either of the suit or sack. There was absolutely nothing to connect him with the crime, or any article of his that might set those bloodhounds on the track. He picked up his coat and waistcoat and boots and walked along the edge of the lake in the shallow water till he came to firm ground, and then proceeded across an open field of rough grass in his stockinged feet to his cottage.

If his burglary had been successful he would have returned to his cottage in any case, for he was too old a hand to leave the village. Now that things had turned out differently, he would stay and watch events. He took off his wet clothes and pulled on a pair of pajamas and a worn dressing gown. In the homely surroundings of his room the horror was less acute, and he could review the situation calmly. He helped himself to a stiff whiskey to keep out the cold, and wrung out his wet clothes in the old sink in the corner of the small kitchen and hung them to dry. Then he returned to his sitting room.

He smiled cynically as he thought of all his careful preparation. A giant oak, a monster in decay, stood about 50 yards from the cottage. He had found out all about that oak; nothing escaped his fertile mind. It was bare of branches to a height of about 10 feet, and then forked into three mighty stems. He had climbed up to the fork and found exactly what he wanted. Between the stems the inside was hollow and rotten; and no one would guess it seeing it from below. Into this cavity he had intended to let down his catch, and cover it carefully with rotting wood.

There it would remain for a year at least, for he was no novice at the game. Even if he had been suspected and the police had come to search! He could picture them digging up the garden, probing in the old thatch, and going down the well—all the old-fashioned places of concealment. Hadn't he gone over it a score of times? Police and plainclothes officers interrogating him while he told his simple story. How he had stayed at the inn till closing time, gossiping with Hucks, the landlord, and walked home with Dick Noakes, a farm hand, and then slept till the morning. All quite straight and above board. It had been his name had been written on the slip of paper, a name he had tried to forget, and had borne many aliases since then. Some efforts by the police had been made to discover his origin, but after futile inquiries they had dismissed the matter as a common case of an unwanted child, and no more trouble was taken. The people at the institution had merely called him Jack, and the old name had remained dormant in his brain and almost forgotten. But with the power of reading came knowledge and the wild longing of a caged thing for liberty. He was a wiry, active youngster, with restless dark eyes and a mop of black hair, and hungry—always hungry, he remembered.

And then he had run away—quite easily, and the institution knew him no more.

For the first time in three years, the Wildcats broke Minnesota's stranglehold on the first eleven, but still it was one of the mighty Gophers who was acclaimed above all the rest.

55,000 MAY SEE OHIO - MICHIGAN IN BIG 10 FRAY

COLUMBUS, Nov. 20 (UP)—A Michigan football team without a vestige of the qualities of the great "point-a-minute" teams Fielding Yost developed at the turn of the century or the Wolverine combines with which young Harry Kipke ruled the west after he took over the ruins, will oppose its traditional rival, Ohio State, here tomorrow hopeful of a gridiron miracle.

A crowd of approximately 55,000 fans is expected to witness the game, the feature of the Scarlet and Gray's homecoming program. The glamour of past meetings, rather than any sparkle attached to the present will be the box office lure. The contest is the final one for nine senior Ohio players.

OHIO TO HONOR FAMED SPRINTER ON SATURDAY

COLUMBUS, Nov. 20 (UP)—The first official recognition by the school to which he brought fame, will be given Edse Owens, her of the 1936 Olympic games, by Ohio State Athletic officials here tomorrow between halves of the Michigan football game.

Owens, winner of four Olympic gold medals, did not return to school this fall. He has spent the major part of his time since the return from Berlin in New York.

The sprint and jump star is now considering an offer to go to Hollywood and take part in a motion picture to be made by Twentieth Century-Fox that will have as its background the Olympic games.

About This And That In Many Sports

Irish or Wildcats?

The football game that is grasping the interest of many of central Ohio's grid fans is that between Northwestern's unbeaten, Wildcats and Notre Dame's kicked-about but still tough Irish—On the record book, Northwestern should win, hunch players give the edge to the Ramblers—The Wildcats have been playing great football, gaining a one-point edge over Ohio State, a one touchdown margin over Minnesota in the mud, but were held to only a 9-0 score by Michigan, bumped hard and often by Big Ten and other foes—The Irish were surprisingly beaten by Navy, 3-0, and by Pittsburgh by four touchdowns—The question is: "Can Notre Dame maintain the pace it showed against Army last week?"—And another: "Does the Michigan 9-0 score show that Northwestern has shot its wad?"

Out For Revenge

The Laydenmen are out after something besides victory, too—Last year, flush after an 18-13 victory over Ohio State university, the Irish took on Northwestern, but led by Guard Paul Tangora, who played all afternoon in the Notre Dame backfield, the Wildcats stopped the South Bend streak . . .

16 Games Guessed

This is prediction day with the Northwestern-Notre Dame game one of the tough ones to name—However, the janitor will ride with the Irish—Other guesses include Ohio over Michigan, Fordham over Georgia, Minnesota over Wisconsin, Purdue over Indiana, Illinois over Chicago, Temple over Iowa, Southern Methodist over Baylor, Ohio U. over John Carroll, Muskingum over Wayne, Toledo over Otterbein, Wooster over Oberlin, Baldwin Wallace over Louisville, Akron over Mt. Union, Iowa State over Drake, California over Stanford . . .

New Hunting Scheme

It seems too bad that the secretary of the sportsmen's club should have to obtain his rabbits in this manner—Harry L. Bartholomew frightened a rabbit to death the other day—Russ Imier claims Harry shot at the same bunny seven times, and missed them all, only to have the rabbit fall over dead from fright . . .

EIGHT GOLFERS REMAIN IN RACE FOR PGA CROWN

PINEHURST, N. C., Nov. 20 (UP)—Eight golfers, three of whom last Sunday had little idea they would be here when Friday's sun rose, squared off in the quarter-final round of the 19th annual P.G.A. tournament today.

They are: Harold (Jug) McSpaden of Winchester, Mass.; Jimmy Thomson of Shawnee-on-Deleware, Pa.; Craig Wood of Deal, N. J.; Tony Manero of Greensboro, N. C.; Horton Smith of Chicago; Denny Shute of Boston, Bill Mehlhorn of Louisville, Ky., and Jimmy Hines of Garden City, N. Y.

The betting commissioners established these odds on the four matches:

Thomson 2 to 3 over McSpaden; Manero 1 to 2 over Wood; Smith and Shute even, and Hines 5 to 7 over Mehlhorn.

WILDCATS IN CONDITION

EVANSTON, Ill., Nov. 20 (UP)—A last, light drill—both for the season and for the Notre Dame game—occupied Northwestern this morning. The Wildcats reviewed signals, play formations, and concentrated on aerial plays which they have used little so far. The entire squad of 50 will leave for South Bend tomorrow morning.

Poems That Live

MEETING AT NIGHT

The gray sea and the long black land;
And the yellow half-moon large
and low;
And the startled little waves that leap
In fiery ringlets from their sleep,
As I gain the cove with pushing prow,
And quench its speed 't the slushy sand.

Then a mile of warm sea-scented
beach;
Three fields to cross till a farm appears;
A tap of the pane, the quick sharp scratch
And blue spurt of a lighted match,
And a voice less loud, through its joys and fears,
Than the two hearts beating each
to each!

—Robert Browning.

Stringbean Smith Bay Be Candidate For Center

The 1936-37 edition of the Circleville high school cage team will swing into action Dec. 5 on the Jackson township court, the schedule, announced Friday by Principal E. E. Reger, discloses.

There are 14 games listed, only five of which will be played on the Circleville Athletic Club gym court. These are the five against Central Buckeye league foes. Four games are scheduled in addition to the loop frays, Ashville being met Jan. 9, Columbus Academy Dec. 11, Chillicothe Dec. 18, and Jackson township, Dec. 5. All will be on foreign courts.

The game at Chillicothe will pry the lid off the season for the Ross Young-coached outfit.

Henry Only Veteran

The Tiger squad has been called for its initial practice under Coach Jack Landrum's supervision. Many members of the squad have been working out in the gymnasium. Coach Landrum must start his practices with a green squad, Don Henry being the only veteran returning. Stringbean Smith, who did not play football because of a bruised hip, may be a leading candidate for the tipoff position left vacant by graduation of Dick Melson. Others from last year's team who graduated were John Jenkins, Cecil Andrews, and Chuck Styers.

The complete year's schedule includes:

Dec. 5, at Jackson township.
Dec. 11, at Columbus Academy.
Dec. 18, at Chillicothe.
Jan. 8, Bexley.
Jan. 9, at Ashville.

Wendt, Hamrick Put On UP Big Ten Team

CHICAGO, Nov. 20—(UP)—Northwestern's Wildcats, champions of the Big Ten and ranking contenders for the mythical national title, placed four men on the first all-conference honor team compiled today by the United Press.

For the first time in three years, the Wildcats broke Minnesota's stranglehold on the first eleven, but still it was one of the mighty Gophers who was acclaimed above all the rest.

Ed Widseth, all-America and all-conference of 1935, came back stronger than ever this season and was hailed the player of the year by more than 75 coaches, scouts, writers and players.

Minnesota landed two men on the first team, Ohio State two, Illinois one, Indiana one and Purdue one. On the second eleven were three Northwestern players, three from Minnesota and one each from Michigan, Ohio State, Indiana, Iowa and Purdue.

Standouts on the first team included Widseth, Capt. Merle Wendt of Ohio State, all-conference for two straight years; Capt. Steve Reid of Northwestern and John Drake, highest scoring half of Purdue's touchdown twins.

The selections:

First Team	Position
Merle Wendt, Ohio State	End
Ed Widseth, Minnesota	Tackle
Les Schreiber, Northwestern	Guard
El Sayre, Illinois	Center
Steve Reid, Northwestern	Guard
Chas. Hamrick, Ohio State	Tackle
John Kovatch, Northwestern	End
Fred Vanzo, Northwestern	Quarter
Andy Uram, Minnesota	Half
Vernon Huffman, Indiana	Half
John Drake, Purdue	Full

Second Team	Position
Matt Patanelli, Michigan	End
DeWitt Gibson, Northwestern	Tackle
Inwood Smith, Ohio State	Guard
Earl Svendsen, Minnesota	Center
Charles Schultz, Minnesota	Guard
Tom Livingston, Indiana	Tackle
Homer Harris, Iowa	End
C. Wilkinson, Minnesota	Quarter
Don Heap, Northwestern	Half
Cecil Isbell, Purdue	Half
Steve Toth, Northwestern	Full

Honorable mention: Ends—King, Minnesota; Reed, Minnesota; Nelson, Illinois; Kenderline, Indiana.

Tackles—Voigts, Northwestern; Burnett, Northwestern; Schreyer, Purdue; Milder, Minnesota; Golingske, Wisconsin.

Guards—Kuhn, Illinois; Zarnas, Ohio State; Sirotsky, Indiana; Weld, Minnesota; Garbe, Michigan.

Centers—Wolfe, Ohio State; Muier, Indiana; Fuller, Northwestern; Bell, Purdue; Whiteside, Chicago.

Backs—Dye, Ohio State; McDonald, Ohio State; Geyer, Northwestern; Jankowski, Wisconsin; Tommerson, Wisconsin; Buhler, Minnesota; Sweet, Michigan; Simmons, Iowa.

Two of the nation's three unbeaten but tied teams who see action will win. Louisiana State, preparing for its final game of the year next Saturday against Tulane, will have an easy time against Southwestern Louisiana. Fordham, a leading Rose Bowl candidate, will triumph over Georgia and have only N. Y. U. on Thanksgiving Day as its last barrier to a great season. Alabama is idle.

M'LARNIN MAY CLOSE CAREER IN AMBERS GO 55,000 MAY SEE OHIO - MICHIGAN IN BIG 10 FRAY

NEW YORK, Nov. 20—(UP)—Baby-faced Jimmy M'Larnin comes to the crossroads of his pugilistic career tonight when he tangles with Lightweight Champion Lou Ambers in a 10-round, over-the-weight match at Madison Square Garden.

A crowd of approximately 55,000 fans is expected to witness the game, the feature of the Scarlet and Gray's homecoming program. The glamour of past meetings, rather than any sparkle attached to the present will be the box office lure. The contest is the final one for nine senior Ohio players.

COLUMBUS, Nov. 20—(UP)—A Michigan football team without a vestige of the qualities of the great "point-a-minute" teams Fielding Yost developed at the turn of the century or the wolverine combines with which young Harry Kipke ruled the west after he took over the reins, will oppose its traditional rival, Ohio State, here tomorrow hopeful of a gridiron miracle.

A crowd of approximately 55,000 fans is expected to witness the game, the feature of the Scarlet and Gray's homecoming program. The glamour of past meetings, rather than any sparkle attached to the present will be the box office lure. The contest is the final one for nine senior Ohio players.

OHIO TO HONOR FAMED SPRINTER ON SATURDAY

COLUMBUS, Nov. 20—(UP)—The first official recognition by the school to which he brought fame, will be given Jesse Owens, her of the 1936 Olympic games, by Ohio State Athletic officials here tomorrow between halves of the Michifan football game.

Owens, winner of four Olympic gold medals, did not return to school this fall. He has spent the major part of his time since the return from Berlin in New York.

The sprint and jump star is now considering an offer to go to Hollywood and take part in a motion picture to be made by Twentieth Century-Fox that will have as its background the Olympic games.

About This And That In Many Sports

Irish or Wildcats?

The football game that is grasping the interest of many of central Ohio's grid fans is that between Northwestern's unbeaten, Wildcats and Notre Dame's kicked-about but still tough Irish—On the record book, Northwestern should win; hunch players give the edge to the Ramblers—The Wildcats have been playing great football, gaining a one-point edge over Ohio State, a one touchdown margin over Minnesota in the mud, but were held to only a 9-0 score by Michigan, bumped hard and often by Big Ten and other foes—The Irish were surprisingly beaten by Navy, 3-0, and by Pittsburgh by four touchdowns—The question is: "Can Notre Dame maintain the pace it showed against Army last week?—And another: "Does the Michigan 9-0 score show that Northwestern has shot its wad?"

Out For Revenge

The Laydenmen are out after something besides victory, too—Last year, flush after an 18-13 victory over Ohio State university, the Irish took on Northwestern, but led by Guard Paul Tangora, who played all afternoon in the Notre Dame backfield, the Wildcats stopped the South Bend streak ***

16 Games Guessed

This is prediction day with the Northwestern-Notre Dame game one of the tough ones to name—However, the janitor will ride with the Irish—Other guesses include Ohio over Michigan, Fordham over Georgia, Minnesota over Wisconsin, Purdue over Indiana, Illinois over Chicago, Temple over Iowa, Southern Methodist over Baylor, Ohio U. over John Carroll, Muskingum over Wayne, Toledo over Otterbein, Wooster over Oberlin, Baldwin Wallace over Louisville, Akron over Mt. Union, Iowa State over Drake, California over Stanford ***

New Hunting Scheme

It seems too bad that the secretary of the sportsman's club should have to obtain his rabbits in this manner—Harry L. Bartholomew frightened a rabbit to death the other day—Russ Imier claims Harry shot at the same bunny seven times, and missed them all, only to have the rabbit fall over dead from fright ***

EIGHT GOLFERS REMAIN IN RACE FOR PGA CROWN

PINEHURST, N. C., Nov. 20—(UP)—Eight golfers, three of whom last Sunday had little idea they would be here when Friday's sun rose, squared off in the quarter-final round of the 19th annual P.G.A. tournament today.

They are: Harold (Jug) McSpaden of Winchester, Mass.; Jimmy Thomson of Shawnee-on-Deleware, Pa.; Craig Wood of Deal, N. J.; Tony Manero of Greensboro, N. C.; Horton Smith of Chicago; Denny Shute of Boston; Bill Mehlhorn of Louisville, Ky.; and Jimmy Hines of Garden City, N. Y.

The betting commissioners established these odds on the four matches:

Thomson 2 to 3 over McSpaden; Manero 1 to 2 over Wood; Smith and Shute even, and Hines 5 to 7 over Mehlhorn.

WILDCATS IN CONDITION

EVANSTON, Ill., Nov. 20—(UP)—A last, light drill—both for the season and for the Notre Dame game—occupied Northwestern this morning. The Wildcats reviewed signals, play formations, and concentrated on aerial plays which they have used little so far. The entire squad of 50 will leave for South Bend tomorrow morning.

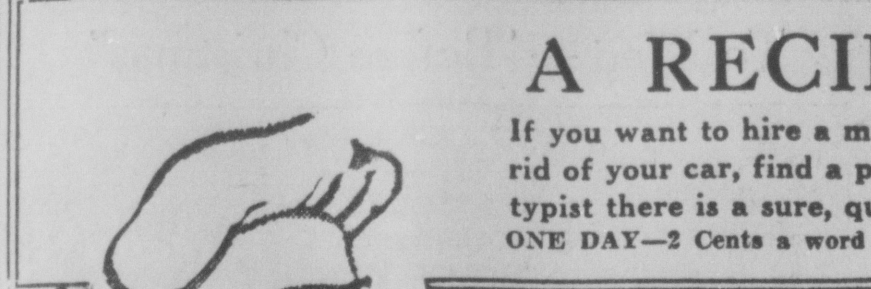

Poems That Live

MEETING AT NIGHT

The gray sea and the long black land;
And the yellow half-moon large and low;
And the startled little waves that leap
In fiery ringlets from their sleep,
As I gain the cove with pushing prow,
And quench its speed I' the slushy sand.

Then a mile of warm sea-scented beach;
Three fields to cross till a farm appears;
A tap of the pane, the quick sharp scratch
And blue spurt of a lighted match,
And a voice less loud, through its joys and fears,
Than the two hearts beating each to each!

—Robert Browning.

BUSINESS AND SPECULATIVE RISKS

MRS. E. L. WILKES, Chinchilla, Pa., has sent in a hand for comments. The deal was made by North, in a duplicate game. Its bidding and play brought havoc to declarers. The hand illustrates various important points, concerning proper risks to be taken.

anything, unless partner opens the bidding, or shows by a forced bid that hands should sit. North's type of hand appears only 19 times in 1,000 holdings. Each of the remaining types of hand appears only 13 times in 1,000, urging unusual caution.

Sound rules for opening the bidding, with hands of common types, occurring as frequently as 50 times in 1,000, are as follows. To open bidding as dealer or second hand, 2½ quick tricks with anything except real two-suiters, the latter need only 2 quick tricks; either ability to safely rebid or else having not less than 4 probable honor tricks in case partner plays no trumps or a suit; a total playing strength of not less than 5 probable tricks. A suit bid should hold at least 3 probable trump tricks. A no trump call should show at least 3 guarded suits and a total strength of at least 5 probable honor tricks, either as declarer or as dummy. Third and fourth hand opening bids should have added quick trick values, unless strong in both major suits. Weakness in one major suit obligates 3 quick tricks. Weakness in both major suits requires 3½ quick tricks.

Looked at in the light of soundness, not one of the four hands shown should open the bidding. The speculative risk is too great, amounting to gambling.

The present rather common custom of passing big hands as dealer, and of opening the bidding light as third hand, thinking that partner may have passed a big hand, is not sound and works no better than it did years ago when tried.

Bridge, like other partnerships, have to consider both business and speculative risks. The former risks are common and well understood. In the long run bringing profit to the experienced. Speculative risks are less common. In the long run these gain only for those of unusual experience and acumen. The less frequently a type of hand appears the greater caution should its holder exercise, as freaky holdings offer less than ordinary chances to fit in with what partner has. They run speculative risks. If partner happens also to hold a freak, great risks may be incurred. In rare cases great rewards may be had.

A type of hand appearing less frequently than 30 times in 1,000 is freaky, demanding caution and unusual strength to risk much of anything, unless partner opens the bidding, or shows by a forced bid that he should fit. North's type of hand appears only 15 times in 1,000 holdings. Each of the remaining types of hand appears only 13 times in 1,000, urging unusual caution.

TWO-HOUR PARKING REGULATION NOT TO BE ENFORCED UNTIL NEXT WEEK

SIGNS DELAYED BY HARD WORK ON SIDEWALKS

Police Chief Warns City to Enforce All Angles of New Ordinance

"DOWNTOWN" IS DEFINED

Law to Affect Long Trucks in Business Area

Downtown shoppers need not worry about the city two-hour parking regulation this Saturday. Employees of the city service department have been unable to complete erection of the signs throughout the restricted district and the regulation will not be enforced until next week, Police Chief William McCrady announced Friday.

"We expect to have the signs up by the middle of next week and motorists will be warned through the newspaper when the department will begin enforcement," McCrady said.

Placed 100 Feet Apart

The signs are being erected 100 feet apart throughout the restricted area and all alleys will be well posted. Service department workers have found erection of the signs a difficult job. The majority of the signs are being placed on iron posts and holes must be cut through sidewalks.

The section designated as the downtown district is on Main street between Scioto street and the first alley east of Court street, and on Court street between Franklin and Pinckney streets. Parking will be limited to two hours between 9 a. m. and 6 p. m. from Monday to Friday, inclusive, and from 9 a. m. to 10 p. m. on Saturdays. Holidays are exempt from the regulation.

Other regulations of the parking ordinance on trucks in excess of 18 feet in length parking in the downtown district and parking in drives are being enforced by the police department.

May Load, Unload. Trucks in excess of the designated length are restricted from parking in the district except for loading and unloading and then for a reasonable length of time.

OFFICERS GUARD SCENE OF TRIAL FOR KENTUCKIAN

NEW CASTLE, Ky., Nov. 20—(UP)—A troop of state police and a dozen sheriff's deputies surrounded Henry county court house today as Brig. Gen. Henry H. Denhardt arrived for preliminary hearing of charges that he murdered his fiancée, Mrs. Verna Taylor.

"We're ready to stop any attempt against the general's life," said towering Evan Harrod, sheriff.

Denhardt, former lieutenant governor and adjutant general, was popularly connected with official activities which aroused antagonism even among the neighbors of his 800-acre estate. Mrs. Taylor, a widow and one of the most beautiful women in this section, had many friends.

"Because of the intense feeling against the general, we are preparing for any emergency," Harrod said.

Denhardt, charged with first degree murder, will contend at his hearing that Mrs. Taylor killed herself.

PRESIDENT AND PARTY TO FISH NEAR TRINIDAD

ABOARD U. S. S. CHESTER, AT SEA, Nov. 20—(UP)—President Roosevelt was in high spirits today in anticipation of getting in a day of fishing in tropical waters tomorrow during the refueling stop at Trinidad.

The chief executive is enjoying his cruise to South America, participating in life aboard the U. S. S. Indianapolis fully, before he reaches the arduous social and political tasks at Buenos Aires where he will open the Pan-American peace conference Dec. 1.

All hands changed into summer clothing as the cruiser and the destroyer Chester conveying the Indianapolis moved into ever warmer weather on the edge of the Caribbean sea.

The President and members of his party dined last night in the ward room of the Indianapolis with the officers, as guests of the captain.

The President and his party were on deck early today for a closeup view of the Virgin Islands—the first land sighted since leaving Charleston, S. C., on Wednesday.

Hunter Upset, Forgets Name

SHIPS ORDERED TO RESIST ANY REBEL SEIZURE

House of Commons Anxious as Eden Reads Warning Sent by Nationalists

(Continued from Page One) the nationalist threat concerns actually a bombardment of Barcelona—such as has occurred at other ports—and avoids the formal issue of a blockade.

A spokesman declined to specify whether British ships would remain in Barcelona harbor if there now, go into the port hereafter or enter the three-mile coastal zone off the port at their own risk.

It was evident that the Spanish civil war had taken a most dangerous turn. There was danger in every phrase of the Bellicose note which Eden read quietly to the House of Commons today.

Eden revealed that the government's first move was to instruct Sir Henry Chilton, British ambassador to Spain, to ask Gen. Francisco Franco, nationalist dictator, to guarantee secure safe anchorages at Barcelona—as was done at four other Spanish ports—for British ships.

Asked for Time

Chilton was ordered also to ask Franco to allow proper time, before any attack was made on Barcelona, for evacuation of all British residents.

Chilton is now on the French-Spanish frontier.

PRESTON GRAY, FARMER, DIES IN RURAL HOME

Preston Grant Gray, 69, of Walnut Valley, near Hallsville, father of Mrs. Virgil Francis, Circleville, died at his home Thursday night of complications.

Besides Mrs. Francis he is survived by his widow, Nannie; two sons, Raymond of Chillicothe and Walter of Hallsville, and four daughters, Mrs. Myrtle Hettinger and Mrs. Maude Hatfield, James-town, and Mrs. Cecile Schreck, and Mrs. Mabel Angus, Chillicothe.

Funeral services will be held Sunday at the Walnut Valley church at 2 p. m. Burial will be in the Hallsville cemetery.

FOOD SHORTAGE AT DANGER POINT IN TERRITORIES

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 20—(UP)—Food shortage in Hawaii and Alaska became a matter of official alarm in the two territories today as the maritime strike remained deadlocked and added more idle ships to the growing list.

Gov. Joseph B. Poindexter of Hawaii announced he had appealed to the department of the interior to relieve a "precarious" food situation. He said Rice and potatoes, staple foods in the islands, and dairy products are nearly exhausted, and flour and butter will not last longer than the second week of December.

The governor said Hawaiian newspapers were not publishing "the facts" because they did not wish to start a large-scale raid on retail grocery stores.

Gov. John W. Troy of Alaska also appealed to the department of the interior, asking that emergency government ship service to the territory be started "the soonest possible" because many Alaska communities reported critical food shortages.

COUNTIAN HELD FOR THEFT OF HARNESS, SAW

Edgar Deyo, residing near Orient, was arrested by Clark county officers Tuesday night in connection with the theft of a set of harness and a saw from Joseph Hinkle, near Springfield, about seven months ago, the sheriff's department reported.

Sheriffs of Clark and Madison counties, accompanied by Sheriff Charles Radcliff and Deputy Miller Fissell, recovered the articles Thursday night at Deyo's home. They learned he was in Springfield to attend a funeral and he was arrested there by Springfield officers.

Sheriff Radcliff said Deyo moved to this county last spring.

DICTATOR'S SON IS EXECUTED BY REBEL GUN FIRE

ALICANTE, Spain, Nov. 20—(UP)—Jose Antonio Primo De Rivera, son of the former dictator of Spain and nominal leader of the Spanish Fascists, was executed by a firing squad at 7:30 a. m. today, it was officially announced.

The execution took place in the prison yard with only a few witnesses from the loyalist army present.

De Rivera, who was 33, was sentenced to death by a court martial which found him guilty of treason.

Fascists had warned government leaders that they had in custody a son of Prime Minister Largo Caballero—they did not give his name or say where he was—and that he would be executed in retaliation if Primo De Rivera was put to death.

The tall, fair-haired young aristocrat, eldest son of the Marquis De Estella, was a lawyer, soldier and politician.

His story is more like a chapter from the days when the shedding of blue blood on the field of honor was not an uncommon event in old Spain. He took part, in the rebellion for the avowed purpose of defending the honor of his late father, General Primo De Rivera, who was ousted by the leftists.

The triumph of Fascism for him would have meant the vindication of his father's name.

Educated by the Jesuits, he served in the army from 1923 to 1930 when a court martial found him guilty of slapping the face of General Queipo De Llano—also over a question of family honor.

PRESIDENT AND PARTY TO FISH NEAR TRINIDAD

ABOARD U. S. S. CHESTER, AT SEA, Nov. 20—(UP)—President Roosevelt was in high spirits today in anticipation of getting in a day of fishing in tropical waters tomorrow during the refueling stop at Trinidad.

The chief executive is enjoying his cruise to South America, participating in life aboard the U. S. S. Indianapolis fully, before he reaches the arduous social and political tasks at Buenos Aires where he will open the Pan-American peace conference Dec. 1.

All hands changed into summer clothing as the cruiser and the destroyer Chester conveying the Indianapolis moved into ever warmer weather on the edge of the Caribbean sea.

The President and members of his party dined last night in the ward room of the Indianapolis with the officers, as guests of the captain.

The President and his party were on deck early today for a close-up view of the Virgin Islands—the first land sighted since leaving Charleston, S. C., on Wednesday.

Hunter Upset, Forgets Name

PORTERVILLE, Cal., (UP)—Perhaps one reason why California deer are unimpaired of the open season is that one hunter was picked up near here after wandering two days and nights in the open, swimming the Kern River, losing his gun and finally forgetting his name.

Driver Runs Down Coyote

COTTONWOOD FALLS, Kas. (UP)—Carl Park, has found a new way to hunt coyotes. Driving his car near here, Park saw a coyote loping down the highway in front of him. Park gave chase and soon overhauled the animal. The car bumper struck and killed the coyote.

House of Commons Anxious as Eden Reads Warning Sent by Nationalists

the nationalist threat concerns actually a bombardment of Barcelona—such as has occurred at other ports—and avoids the formal issue of a blockade.

A spokesman declined to specify whether British ships would remain in Barcelona harbor if there now, go into the port hereafter or enter the three-mile coastal zone off the port at their own risk.

It was evident that the Spanish civil war had taken a most dangerous turn. There was danger in every phrase of the Belloc note which Eden read quietly to the House of Commons today.

Eden revealed that the government's first move was to instruct Sir Henry Chilton, British ambassador to Spain, to ask Gen. Francisco Franco, nationalist dictator, to guarantee secure safe anchorages at Barcelona—as was done at four other Spanish ports—for British ships.

FOOD SHORTAGE AT DANGER POINT IN TERRITORIES

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 20—(UP)—Food shortage in Hawaii and Alaska became a matter of official alarm in the two territories today as the maritime strike remained deadlocked and added more idle ships to the growing list.

Gov. Joseph B. Poindexter of Hawaii announced he had appealed to the department of the interior to relieve a "precarious" food situation. He said Rice and potatoes, staple foods in the islands, and dairy products are nearly exhausted, and flour and butter will not last longer than the second week of December.

The governor said Hawaiian newspapers were not publishing "the facts" because they did not wish to start a large-scale raid on retail grocery stores.

Gov. John W. Troy of Alaska also appealed to the department of the interior, asking that emergency government ship service to the territory be started "the soonest possible" because many Alaska communities reported critical food shortages.

DICTATOR'S SON IS EXECUTED BY REBEL GUN FIRE

ALICANTE, Spain, Nov. 20—(UP)—Jose Antonio Primo De Rivera, son of the former dictator of Spain and nominal leader of the Spanish Fascists, was executed by a firing squad at 7:30 a. m. today, it was officially announced.

The execution took place in the prison yard with only a few witnesses from the loyalist army present.

De Rivera, who was 33, was sentenced to death by a court martial which found him guilty of treason.

Fascists had warned government leaders that they had in custody a son of Prime Minister Largo Caballero—they did not give his name or say where he was—and that he would be executed in retaliation if Primo De Rivera was put to death.

The tall, fair-haired young aristocrat, eldest son of the Marquis De Estella, was a lawyer, soldier and politician.

His story is more like a chapter from the days when the shedding of blue blood on the field of honor was not an uncommon event in old Spain. He took part, in the rebellion for the avowed purpose of defending the honor of his late father, General Primo De Rivera, who was ousted by the leftists.

The triumph of Fascism for him would have meant the vindication of his father's name.

Educated by the Jesuits, he served in the army from 1923 to 1930 when a court martial found him guilty of slapping the face of General Queipo De Llano—also over a question of family honor.
